Technical Artist (Environment) - XDefiant

Saguenay - Full-time - 74399925025203

As a Technical Artist (Environment) you are responsible for many technical aspects related to the overall graphics of the environments (level art, modeling, textures, integration, etc.) In addition to in-depth artistic knowledge, he/she must also possess very strong technical skills.

Working in collaboration with other members of a multidisciplinary team, the technical environment artist is responsible for many of the complex technical aspects related to the graphic elements that make up the levels. Acting as a reference within his/her team, he/she helps, trains and advises peers, while developing production pipelines and best practices.

What you'll do

- Master the graphic aspects of the engine used to create levels, and become a reference in the field;
- Help and support the artistic and technical departments in their development choices, both in terms of quality and performance;
- Use and implement the best tools and work methods to improve productivity and respect for constraints;
- Provide training sessions so that all members of the graphics team are able to use production tools and methods properly;
- Develop, integrate, validate and optimize graphic data in the engine;
- Participate in reviews;
- Solve complex graphic problems according to their priority, and support other artists in finding solutions to their issues;
- Perform all other related tasks.

What you bring to the team

- Degree in game-oriented modeling or other equivalent training;
- Experience as a modeler, level artist, special effects artist, lighting artist or character modeler in video games;
- Excellent technical skills;
- Good organizational skills;
- Strong artistic sense and attention to detail;
- Good verbal and written communication skills;
- Creative and efficient;
- Team player;
- Autonomous and proactive.
